Frank,

No need to reply, know you are busy. Carvel did an excellent job at the project meeting December 12-13; showed himself to be an excellent Alaskan in a room full of excellent Alaskans. What a great effort on your part.

Merry Christmas to you and yours,

Mike

Subject: IOGCC Release

Governor:

IOGCC would like to send out a release that addresses the recent legislation for the federal spending package that would reduce state/federal revenue sharing for oil and gas produced on federal land and cut states' shares by 2%. This has been a 50/50 split. The current legislation makes it 48/52 - the feds would keep an additional 2 percent for administrative costs.

Here's a chart that shows the states that are most affected:

Highest State Deductions Based on FY 2007 Federal Mineral Revenue Disbursements

Wyoming - $18,505,238

New Mexico - $11,058,689

Utah - $2,708,593

Colorado - $2,457,844

California - $1,224,818

Montana - $783,165

Louisiana - $480,591

Alaska - $435,933

Texas - $433,345

North Dakota - $275,508

I've attached a draft release and pasted the text below. You would be addressing the issue as IOGCC chairman.

John Katz has reviewed the draft.

Oil and Gas Producing States to Fight Federal Revenue Sharing Provision

The Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission (IOGCC) announced today that it will fight to restore funding cut by the passage of a Congressional spending package provision that will reduce states' share of revenues from federal oil and gas production.

The provision reallocates funding from a current 50-50 split of federal oil and gas revenues to a 48-52 percent split. This results in a 2 percent reduction of federal oil and gas revenue income to the states – and an unjustified 2 percent increase in revenue to the federal government.

"The IOGCC has long advocated for a fair 50-50 split on revenue and was in fact instrumental in achieving that goal several years ago," said Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, IOGCC chairman. "This latest Congressional action poses a significant threat to states and state programs. The IOGCC will continue to do everything in its power to fight this provision."

Gov. Palin said she is also concerned that this Congressional action would set a precendent in reducing the share of revenue that is distributed to the states.

"We believe that the federal government has not made its case for this action," said IOGCC Acting Executive Director Gerry Baker. "Previous studies have shown that states can administer the revenue distribution at a much lower cost than the federal government."

Although the new provision will affect many states, it will hit western states with the most public lands the hardest. Such is the case with New Mexico, an IOGCC member state.

"Revenue from oil and gas production on federal land is an important source of income for the state of New Mexico," said Mark Fesmire, chairman of New Mexico's Oil Conservation Commission. "This new provision would hit the state hard and would reduce our share of revenue by more than $11 million per year."

The IOGCC, representing the governors of 30 member and eight associate states, promotes the conservation and efficient recovery of the nation's oil and natural gas resources while protecting health, safety, and the environment. Established by the charter member states' governors in 1935, it is the oldest, largest, and most effective interstate compact in the nation.

NY's Bloated Hospitals
Steven Malanga, New York Post, December 20, 2007
Even as the '08 presidential candidates stress the need to reform health care, New York state is leadin the way - backward. A year after the landmark Berger Commission report called for modest cuts in New York's excess hospital capacity, the state has lost ground. . .

Beware the Witches of Grammar
John McWhorter, New York Sun, December 20, 2007
(This article also appeared on the National Review Online Web Briefing)
The fierceness with which people hold to the idea that there are things English speakers say that contravene logic, and thus constitute lapses in intelligence, grace, and civility, is a peculiar experience for a linguist. . . This tradition of grammatical witchhunting is founded so deeply in perceptions of intelligence and social standing that no amount of argumentation, I suspect, could penetrate it meaningfully. . .

The Best Disinfectant
Nicole Gelinas, City Journal Online, December 19, 2007
New York attorney general Andrew Cuomo is trying to do something revolutionary in New York State: let voters know what's going on. His newly launched website, Project Sunlight, quotes James Madison-"People who mean to be their own governors must arm themselves with the power which knowledge gives"--before giving a guided tour of Albany and its all-too-secretive inhabitants. It's a promising start, but only a start. . .

I would like to make a few comments to governor Palin. I have a big problem with the use of the money that we MAY get. I understand trying to forward fund education but just like everyone else in this entire world the education system needs to learn how to live within there means. I understand first hand the differed maintenance problems but I believe they should trim the budget and eliminate waste before receiving any additional funds. Also I would like to see the PERS funding problem fixed. I am a city worker and the only reason I and many others work for the government agencies is the retirement program. The problem was created by the state and they should fund the program and work on making the PERS system stay in the black. Also I voted for you because I heard you talk allot about fixing the budget and having the state live within our means. So far I see us spending more and not saving, or paying off our debt. I want someone to start making tough choices so that my 2 year old son will not have to fix the problems we are now facing. I love Alaska and have since I moved here back in 90'. I want to stay here and live my entire life here. We are the richest state that I have ever been to and lived in and we can remain that way for years to come. The biggest topic that I would like for you to tackle, like you are working on, is getting gas back down to the Kenai. I have heard a lot of people talking about the gas line down to here and also I hear people talking about the lack of industry here to be a large user. As with anything else you have to have the supply before the industry will commit to work in the area. We as a state will need to make the investment before people are going to invest with us. Industry would like to see some investment and concessions before they are going to invest. If you put as much energy into the gas line that you did for the failing Mat-maid we would have a gas line in half the time. I would like to have some inform ation on what you would like to see happe!

n and how you are going to accomplish the task. Again I would like to see the paying off of debt and saving for the future. Please contact me and let me know where I am wrong with the comments and what information I need to make informed choices. I also invite you to call me and talk to me anytime. My Cell phone number is 252-9854. Call me anytime and i will make time to talk to you. I would like to let you know i used to live in Wasilla and found your work there to be great.

MESSAGE:

I am concerned that our planned budget for 2008 will not be a planned deficit. It is essential that we operate within our financial ability and do not increase but rather decrease our debt. We must operate our state within our means. It is a great concern that our natl. governement and our state continue to carelessly spend without regard for a larger vision and scope for the future. It must begin NOW, first on our state level and in a greater degree the federal gov. COULD WE PLEASE RESOLVE OUR FINACIAL IRRESPONSIBLITY. 9++ TRILLION ??????

thanks,

blessings to you

Governor - I have updated calendar to reflect Wal-Mart Event for today:

Location: Wal-Mart Store - 8900 Old Seward Hwy. - ENTER Front of Store - South end by McDonald's

2:00 p.m. beginning of event. Wal-Mart will present check of $25,000 (500 gift cards) to the Salvation Army. The Wal-Mart Manager is Marty Howard. Marty is celebrating 27 years with Wal-Mart. Major Doug Pollerud, Salvation Army Divisional Commander will be accepting the check for the Salvation Army.

They have chosen various families: Some work for the National Guard, one is a single mother of five, a child with cancer, etc.

They will present check @2:00 p.m. - hope to have gift cards in the families hands by 2:10/2:15 p.m. Shopping will then begin. If the Governor could help the families shop. I have stressed that since this was just asked of the Governor to be present during this time that she not expected to give a speech. They may want her to say "Thank you." I have also stressed that the Governor has other commitments and only has approx. 45 - 60 minutes for this event. They understand that when she needs to depart that is fine.

Governor,

I spoke to Rep. Neuman yesterday afternoon about his comments and asked him specifically what he meant. He said it is his understanding that the governor has "a million dollar discretionary account" and could use $200,000 of that to help dairy farmers (specifically the group led by Kyle Beus).

He was emphatic that any more money from the legislature would take until spring, which is too late (From today's ADN: "In the meantime, the state Creamery Board on Friday authorized a request to the Legislature for up to $200,000 in financial aid for the four farmers"). He's upset that state officials had a problem with the dumping of the milk. He said farmers are at the point where there going to have to "take the cows out in the field and shoot them."

He remains disappointed that he cannot get a meeting with you to discuss this issue. You'll remember he tried during the special session. He wondered if he'd done something that upset you. I told him I had no knowledge of any specific issue and declined to speculate.

Privileged or Personal Material Redacted

I'll stand by for now.

Governor,

Just wanted you to be aware of what we were doing Friday when UAA releases phase 1 of the Alaska Elections Security Project. I gave Kris P. and Mike T. a heads up yesterday on this. Shouldn't be any bombshells. We're being proactive about ensuring elections security. Last summer I asked the University to take an independent look at our elections technology and the processes/procedures employed. UAA completed its initial look and will provide a more in depth review in Phase II, across the next three months. My intent with the Division is to implement recommendations in time for 2008 elections.

What UAA found in this first phase was to them, "…in many ways re-assuring: Alaska's system has many features that improve security. Those include paper back ups for electronic counts, cross checking of vote counts in different locations, and a centralized system for state and federal elections throughout Alaska." (In other states, counties use their own patchwork of different procedures.)

A number of vulnerabilities have also been identified…. For example, the scanners and touch screens "sleep over" with election workers in remote locations because the machines are flown in ahead of time to Bush villages. The Division has procedures for multiple people to check the accuracy of the starting count (set to zero) before polling begins, paper copies of votes are kept, and other procedures maintained to ensure the integrity of the process, but the University will delve deeper into whether other layers of safeguards are needed. In Phase II, UAA will continue to examine the technology (scanners/touch screens) used and make recommendations for improving elections security.

Subject: Draft Governor's Letter Re: Proposed Federal Regulation Changes

Governor:

A draft letter is attached for your review. The deadline for submitting the letter is this Friday. Please let me know if you have any edits or questions.

BACKGROUND

The Federal Department of Homeland Security's Bureau of Customs and Border Protection is proposing a change in how it interprets the Passenger Vessel Services Act. ("PVSA")

Currently, the PVSA is interpreted to allow foreign flagged cruise ships to leave from a U.S. port on a cruise, continue on the cruise with passengers disembarking at several U.S. ports, and then stop briefly at a foreign port (usually Vancouver for cruises to Alaska) before returning to the U.S. port they left from. (Nearly all cruise ships operating in Alaska are foreign flagged)

The proposed change in how the PVSA is interpreted would require foreign flagged cruise ships to:

1) Stop at the foreign port for at least 48 hours;

2) Spend more than 50% of the total time spent at U.S. ports at the foreign port; and

3) Allow passengers to go ashore at the foreign port.

If the proposed changes apply to Alaska, it would have a severe impact on the ability of cruise lines to offer trips to Alaska with stops at multiple ports as they do now. This would affect the number of passengers willing to take an Alaska cruise. There would also be impacts to the state's revenue from the cruise ship gambling tax, cruise ship income tax, the head taxes that go to municipalities, sales taxes to municipalities from purchases by passengers and crew onshore, and lost revenue to hundreds of Alaska businesses that rely on tourism.

POINTS MADE IN THE LETTER

The draft letter basically makes two points. First, the notice of the proposed change does not expressly apply to Alaska, so we are asking the federal agency to clarify the scope of the rule changes. Second, if the agency says the changes would apply to Alaska, we are asking the agency to delay the changes until it has performed a thorough review of the impacts to the State, municipalities, and Alaska businesses and then given everyone time to submit comments.

Thanks,

Randy

I just spoke with Erika. She did not bring up the question of cooperation with the Congressional delegation, thus it would still be useful to have that discussion at a later date. My conversation was fairly short, as she did seem to be on a tight deadline, and she was mainly interested in the nature of the brief the State was preparing. I briefly described to her the history of the state's involvement in the private plaintiff punitive damage claim by way of prelude to telling her that we were new to this particular discussion and therefore still developing the brief. I then told her that in general we anticipated the brief would include a discussion of the legal issues enumerated by the Supreme Court as well as address Exxon's view that the payments it had made to the Governments for fines, penalties and damages somehow meant that it should not have to pay punitive damages. She asked if there was any particular legal issue that concerned us and I mentioned the second issue, the supposed preemptive effect of the Clean Water Act on common law punitive damages.

Thank you ivy!!!

Sure hope you're feeling better. I know those yucky incidents can really whack you out for awhile. I'm so sorry that happened to you.

When do you get up here for Christmas - and do you stay through New Year's celebrations?

I just have to see you gave a heart warming speech to our troops. Woke up from a nap just to listen this afternoon. Made me proud governor. It's especially touching because I see the sacrifices personally in your family. Please thank Track for selflessly choosing to defend all of us and our freedom.

Merry Christmas,

Ivy

Flags Lowered for Secretary of the Alaska Constitutional Convention

Judge Tom Stewart Dead at 88

Governor Sarah Palin ordered state flags lowered to half-staff on Dec. 18 in honor and memory of retired Superior Court Judge Thomas Stewart. Judge Stewart died Dec. 12 in Juneau. He was 88.

Judge Stewart served in the territorial House of Representatives and served as a senator in the first session of the Alaska Legislature. He was the secretary of the Alaska Constitutional Convention in 1955 and 1956. Judge Stewart also served as Superior Court Judge in Juneau from 1958 until his retirement in 1981.M

During World War II, he was a U.S. Army captain in the 10th Mountain Division ski troops, serving in Italy and the Aleutian Islands.

"We lost a true visionary and a wealth of Alaska knowledge," said Governor Palin. "We can forever hold on to Judge Stewart's Alaskan spirit and his guidance for the future if we abide by the constitution he helped create. Todd and I send our thoughts and prayers to his family and loved ones."

Judge Stewart volunteered for the Juneau World Affairs Council, served on the board of directors for the Symphony Foundation and the Southeast Alaska Land Trust, and was active with the Juneau Lyric Opera and other arts and community groups.

Judge Stewart is survived by six of his children.

Department of Labor and Workforce Development

Q: Commissioner, please describe your personal background?
I first came to Alaska in 1959. My father worked for Green Construction Company. My summers as a young person were spent around Alaska on construction projects from Ketchikan to Kotzebue and just about every town or village on the Alaska State Highway System. I am a third generation construction worker. After graduating from Lathrop High School in Fairbanks I went to work on the Trans Alaska Pipeline. I spent 16 years in the field on projects all over the state and I spent another 16 years working for the Alaska Operating Engineers Training Trust as coordinator and administrator.

Q: What do you do for fun on your spare time?
I like to hunt, trap and fish, snow machine, race boats and mine for gold. I love to spend quality time with my wife, daughters and granddaughters, and my dog Raven.

Q: What is your favorite movie and why?
Patton. I am very patriotic. Patton thought outside the box and didn't lead from the rear My uncle served with Patton's 3rd Army and was also an honor guard at his funeral. Patton could motivate people Makes you proud to be an American.

Q: What was your least favorite job and/or experience?
Cutting open asphalt drums with a chisel, one barrel at a time. Years ago asphalt was shipped to the bush in 55 gallon drums and you had to manually remove the top of the drum. When you use up to 8,000 gallons a day, that's a lot of drums – boring.

Q: How have you worked with the Alaska labor community?
I worked for the Alaska Operating Engineers Training Trust as the statewide coordinator and administrator for 16 years promoting and expanding apprenticeship opportunities. I also worked on bringing other training programs together in sharing resources and training together as a team where applicable. Some of the trainings that occurred were ball field, soccer field and parking lot grading and paving for non-profit organizations.

Q: What is your involvement with the Alaska Pipeline Training program?
Alaska Works Partnership provides a pipeline training course every fall to Alaskans wanting to work in the oil and gas construction industry. My previous involvement with the pipeline training was as the team leader for the program My present involvement is knowledge transfer.

Q: After graduation, what opportunities become available for graduates?
In the past more than 90 percent of graduates of each class were placed on North Slope pipeline projects in the same training year.

Q: Why is this program important for the development of the Alaska workforce, especially with the Natural Gas Pipeline on the horizon?
It is our responsibility, everyone not just the state, this time around to step up to the plate and maximize the lessons learned from the Trans Alaska Pipeline System (TAPS) construction, and implement those lessons to training the next generation of Alaskan pipeliners.

Q: What would you tell a student who is worried about the future of oil and gas development in Alaska with the declining fields and world focus on alternative energies?
I would tell a student today the same thing that I told our entry level class of operators in 1998. Alaska is the place to be for the next 25 years in the business of oil and gas, as well as highway construction and mineral development. I am the eternal optimist and never really had a bad day. Some are just better than others. Life is what you make of it.

Q: How does an interested party find additional information for enrollment?
Alaska Works Partnerships, (907) 569-4711.

Governor - I have updated calendar to reflect Wal-Mart Event for today:

Location: Wal-Mart Store – 8900 Old Seward Hwy. – ENTER Front of Store – South end by McDonald's

2:00 p.m. beginning of event. Wal-Mart will present check of $25,000 (500 gift cards) to the Salvation Army. The Wal-Mart Manager is Marty Howard. Marty is celebrating 27 years with Wal-Mart. Major Doug Pollerud, Salvation Army Divisional Commander will be accepting the check for the Salvation Army.

They have chosen various families: Some work for the National Guard, one is a single mother of five, a child with cancer, etc.

They will present check @2:00 p.m. – hope to have gift cards in the families hands by 2:10/2:15 p.m. Shopping will then begin. If the Governor could help the families shop. I have stressed that since this was just asked of the Governor to be present during this time that she not expected to give a speech. They may want her to say "Thank you." I have also stressed that the Governor has other commitments and only has approx. 45 – 60 minutes for this event. They understand that when she needs to depart that is fine. Janice

Governor,

Chuck Hamel sent in a letter to you today via fax that was also sent to Chairman George Miller. The lengthy letter basically boils down to a complaint that the PSIO and State Fire Marshall did not do a through job investigating the August 6, 2007 fire at GC-1. He claims the investigation only supported BP's position and did not adequately review the severity of BP's failed preventive maintenance.

Chuck called this morning and talked to Sunny. I guess he is sick and can not use his email. I was going to send him a response today along the lines we discussed yesterday that I have been receiving his emails and briefing you accordingly. Sunny did pass that along and he was please with the amount of time she spent on the phone with him. He is also pleased with how responsive Katz has been.

I did receive an email from Benoit Faucon of the Dow Jones Newswires inquiring if we had a response to Chuck's letter. I was thinking I would call Tom Irwin and let him know that we need an update on the situation. I also thought that I would send a quick response to the reporter letting him know that we just received Chuck's fax today and that the Governor's office is looking into the issue but would not be prepared to make a statement today.

Does that sound OK with you?

Governor,

I have traded phone messages with Sen. Tom Wagoner for weeks regarding Jeremiah Campbell on the Board of Fisheries. I finally had a chance to talk to him yesterday at the bill signing. He wanted to know what we concluded. Consistent with our last conversation, I told him that I did track down information from the Troopers. Their report indicated that Jeremiah fully complied with the investigation, admitted that he made a clerical error in signing the wrong paperwork. The troopers did not believe there was any intentional wrongdoing. I told him that given the elapsed time and the low severity of the offense, we were not going to hold a hearing to remove him. Going through a public hearing to unseat him this close to a Board meeting addressing Cook Inlet issues would certainly look politically motivated and seen as an attempt to influence the outcome of the next meeting. Obviously he was not happy but he knows there will be vacancies coming up and we can have the appropriate conversation about board balance within that context.

Governor,

Just wanted you to be aware of what we were doing Friday when UAA releases phase 1 of the Alaska Elections Security Project. I gave Kris P. and Mike T. a heads up yesterday on this. Shouldn't be any bombshells. We're being proactive about ensuring elections security. Last summer I asked the University to take an independent look at our elections technology and the processes/procedures employed. UAA completed its initial look and will provide a more in depth review in Phase II, across the next three months. My intent with the Division is to implement recommendations in time for 2008 elections.

What UAA found in this first phase was to them, "...in many ways re-assuring: Alaska's system has many features that improve security. Those include paper back ups for electronic counts, cross checking of vote counts in different locations, and a centralized system for state and federal elections throughout Alaska." (In other states, counties use their own patchwork of different procedures.)

A number of vulnerabilities have also been identified.... For example, the scanners and touch screens "sleep over" with election workers in remote locations because the machines are flown in ahead of time to Bush villages. The Division has procedures for multiple people to check the accuracy of the starting count (set to zero) before polling begins, paper copies of votes are kept, and other procedures maintained to ensure the integrity of the process, but the University will delve deeper into whether other layers of safeguards are needed. In Phase II, UAA will continue to examine the technology (scanners/touch screens) used and make recommendations for improving elections security.

Is there someone I should hook up with at the 2pm Salvation Army thing at wal mart today? Did they want me to park anywhere in a designated area?
